ARMISTICE DAY OBSERVED QUIETLY IN PUTNAM COUNTY

25TH ANNIVERSARY OF ENDING
OF WORLD WAR I SEES NO
END TO SECOND WAR

Twenty-five years ago Thursday morning, the big guns on the western front in France were silenced when an armistice was signed by Germany, ending World War I. That armistice was observed generally here today in a quiet manner, but once more on the western front, as well as throughout the world, big guns are again in action and the next armistice is not yet in sight, although Allied leaders forecast the coming of victory by the forces of right, and an end to hostilities in Europe are forecast for some time, probably early in 1944.

Business was somewhat at a standstill here today, but business went on as usual, and Putnam county, like every other community in the nation, has many who hardly know there is a war going on, and many who are carrying on as usual. It is true they are buying war bonds, stamps, supporting this drive and that drive, but at the same time, they go on and do as they have always done.

The most noticeable thing in every community this year over Armistice Day a year or two years ago, is the lack of young men in these communities. They are now on the fighting fronts or in training camps, preparing themselves against an enemy that will fight to the death when they meet.

Putnam county probably has lost to 2,000 men in the armed forces and more are going monthly. How many will be called before the victory armistice is signed, no one knows, but all are hoping it will be fewer than most people now expect.

This Armistice Day at DePauw is not wholly unlike the one 25 years ago. At that time the R. O. T. C. groups were on the campus, while today it is the navy men who are here.

On November 11, 1918 when word was flashed around the world that Germany had signed an armistice, Greencastle soon knew the facts, because The United Press telephone wires to The Daily Banner office were open and had been throughout the night. The word came about three o'clock in the morning and soon the fire bell and other bells in the community were ringing out the glad news. Celebrations were soon organized throughout the country and the entire day was one of celebration. It is the hope and desire of every citizen that those scenes will soon be repeated again in Putnam county as well as throughout the world.

Rules For Delivery Of Soft Coal Eased

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The Solid Fuels Administration today relaxed its emergency regulations to permit soft coal deliveries to consumers who have less than a thirty-day supply. Previously only those with less than a ten-day supply could get deliveries.

Under the new bituminous regulations consumers other than households may receive sufficient quantities to bring their stocks up to a thirty-day reserve. No restriction is placed on the quantity which may be delivered to householders with less than a thirty-day stock.

Until this change householders were restricted to a maximum of one ton.

Four Being Held In Lieu Of Bond

Three women and a man are being held in the Putnam county jail in lieu of bond after being taken into custody this week and following arraignment before Judge Marshall D. Abrams in circuit court.

Mary Allen, of Bainbridge, charged with child neglect, is held under $500 bond. Mrs. Dorothy Tamari, is also under $500 bond, as a material witness in this case.

Mrs. Paul Smith, 17 years old, charged with child neglect, is under $500 bond.

Ralph Ash, charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor boy and girl, is held under $1,000 bond. Judge Abrams has sent the two minors to the state Boys' and Girls' schools.

CPL. DICK HERSHBERGER TO TAKE AVIATION TRAINING

The Daily Banner is in receipt of word from Corporal Dick Hershberger, former linotype operator here, that he is enroute to California from Alaska, where he has been stationed for the past year or more, to begin his aviation cadet training.

He is being sent to a training center in California, but hopes to get to Greencastle for a visit, now that he is in the States. He returned to the country from Alaska, via Edmonton, Alberta, and wrote Greencastle friends from that city that he was on his way back for special work.

Turkey Expected To Join Allies

ANKARA, Nov. 11 (UP)—The impression was growing in informed circles today that Turkey will enter the war on the side of the Allies within three months.

Foreign Minister Numan Menemencioglu's conferences with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden at Cairo last week were believed to have laid the groundwork for Turkey's entry.

While speculation abroad centered mainly on the possibility that Turkey will grant air bases to the Allies, observers here were inclining more and more to the theory that a fuller role in Allied strategy may have been assigned this country.

Disclosure of Turkey's role, however, presumably will be delayed until all necessary arrangements for putting prepared plans into action have been completed.

Turkey could provide a land bridge over which British and possibly American troops in the middle East could invade Bulgaria and Greece for a pincers offensive against the Balkans in conjunction with the Russian Ukrainian drive.

From Turkish bases, Allied planes could mount a heavy air offensive against the Ploesti oil fields in Rumania and other strategic Balkan targets.

Willkie Making Wisconsin Tour

PORTAGE, Wis., Nov. 11 (UP)—Wisconsin Republican leaders assembled here today to tender a "mixed greeting" to Wendell Willkie, who will sound out party reaction to his Presidential aspirations in a four-day tour of the state.

Willkie was scheduled to arrive this afternoon. During his stay he will meet numerous state officials and party leaders. He will make four public appearances, but he will make only one short speech.

Many Wisconsin GOP leaders have not announced which candidate they will support. But the state's delegation to the 1940 National Republican convention said yesterday that it would support Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York if he runs.

CONFESSES SLAYING

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—(UP)—John Schaffer, 28, a railroad brakeman held in the slaying of his four-year-old step-daughter, confessed today that he beat the child with a heavy leather strap, bound and gagged her, dipped her in a tub of water and locked her in a closet.

"I guess I shouldn't have done it," Schaffer told police. "But she annoyed me—she made noise so I couldn't sleep."

The child's mother, who said she was present during the beating, was arrested and held on an open charge. She told police her husband frequently beat their children, and herself as well.

"I hate him," she said. "He always hated my children from my first marriage and told me they were like animals."

Assistant State Attorney Julius Sherwin said the beating was "the most atrocious case of murder I've ever seen."

Legion Post Will Banquet This Eve.

Putnam County Post No. 58 of The American Legion will observe Armistice Day tonight when they hold their sixteenth annual turkey dinner in the Gobi Memorial church for the close to 200 members of the organization and a few invited guests.

C. M. Wilson of Indianapolis, will be the principal speaker at tonight's meeting.

MAN RETURNED TO BEDFORD IN SHOOTING CASE

JAMES STAGGS SHOT WIFE,
SELF AT MOTHER'S
HOME IN MITCHELL

James Staggs of Bedford, was held in jail here Thursday morning for Indiana State Police, who returned him there, following a broadcast that he was held here pending an investigation of a shooting story he told Sheriff Paul Grimes and night policeman Ben Davis.

Staggs and his wife separated some time ago, after the wife claimed he beat her and threatened to kill her. She cooks in a Bedford cafe, while Staggs works at the Crane Naval Ordnance plant at Burns City. On Wednesday, Staggs went to Mitchell, where his wife was visiting her mother. He took two children up town and treated them to things to eat. He then returned to the home, where he seemed to be in good spirits, but asked his wife to go to the door with him. She refused, saying she would not go as long as he had the gun. He then grabbed her and shot her in the back, the bullet striking a vertebrae and barely missed her spinal cord. He then shot himself in the chest and ran to his automobile and disappeared. The abandoned car was found a few blocks away, but no trace of Staggs was found until the state police broadcast his arrest under the name of John Silvers here Thursday morning.

Reports from Bedford said Mrs. Staggs, who is in the Dunn hospital there, was not fatally wounded. Staggs, alias Silvers, told Sheriff Grimes and Davis, the following story:

Silvers, alias Staggs, boarded a northbound Monon freight train at Bloomington Wednesday night. The train stopped somewhere south of Greencastle and the man said he was standing beside some coal cars when another man went by. He asked the latter for a cigarette, and the man grabbed him by the coat collar and they struggled. Silvers heard a gun explosion but did not realize he had been shot until after the other man had made his getaway. Silvers climbed back on the freight and rode to Greencastle. By this time, he said, he was bleeding profusely and feeling sick. He went into the waiting room of the station and inquired about a physician.

Night Policeman Ben Davis went to the depot and brought the wounded man to the jail. Dr. Charles Aker was called and Silvers was taken to his office where a small caliber bullet was extracted from his chest. Silvers said he believed the shooting occurred about 1:20 a. m. The train reached this city at 2:40 a. m. He stated he was on his way to Fort Wayne to find work.

MINERS STRIKE

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 11.—(UP)—Wildcat strikes spread over the western Pennsylvania coal fields today as angry united mine workers walked out in protest to a government order barring overtime pay for the Armistice Day holiday.

A spokesman for the Western Pennsylvania Coal Operators' Assn., estimated that only about 25 percent of the miners in his area were working. A survey showed 16,290 men idle in 28 pits.

NAZI POSITIONS IN ITALY STRUCK BY HEAVY BOMBS

BIG AMERICAN AND BRITISH
BOMBERS BLAST GERMAN
INSTALLATIONS

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(UP)—American and British heavy bombers, teaming in a double-barreled blast at Nazi communications with Italy, wrecked vital installations in the railroad bottleneck at Bolzano below the Brenner Pass and Modane on the French border, it was announced today.

Flying Fortresses striking up from the Mediterranean dropped bombs on the railroad yards and buildings at Bolzano on the trunk line between Germany and Italy, and were believed to have blocked traffic at least temporarily.

Four-motored bombers of the Royal Air Force sliced across the continent by night to pound the railway town of Modane at the entrance to the Mont Cenis tunnel with hundreds of tons of explosives.

The two-way allied aerial squeeze on the transport lines feeding the Nazi campaign in Italy was accompanied by attacks on targets scattered throughout Germany and occupied territory, including key industrial objectives in Italy.

For the second consecutive day Liberators of Lieut. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz's Mediterranean forces hammered the Villar Perosa roller bearing plant at Turin. British Wellingtons hit a railroad viaduct at Reco east of Genoa. American medium bombers sped across the Adriatic to set fire to oil tanks at Durazzo, Albania, and destroy a 5,000-ton merchantman at Split, Yugoslavia.

Only two allied planes were lost in all the operations announced from North African headquarters, and the Royal Air Force suffered no loss in its night attack, which broke a six-night lull.

Waves of RAF bombers streamed through the moonlight in an hour-long procession for the second attack on Modane, the primary link in rail transport between occupied France and Italy. The air ministry, in its customary terms of reserve, said the attack appeared to have been "well concentrated."

Dr. Zink Discusses Moscow Conference

The much discussed Moscow Pact, hailed as an Allied Nations triumph, was ably interpreted by Dr. Harold Zink, DePauw University professor of Political Science, before Greencastle Rotarians on Wednesday. According to Dr. Zink, the importance of the pact can be appreciated in its acclaim by the army as well as political leaders of all of the Allied Nations.

The greatest significance was attached to the preamble, that portion of the agreement that was signed by the four powers, Russia, China, Britain and the United States, to work in unison to establish a post war peace. Although this was the only part signed by the four powers, jointly, Dr. Zink mentioned that Russia had committed herself in the agreement to continue the fight until the defeat of the Axis, and which could be interpreted that Russia would join the other United Nations in the fight.

NAZIS FALLING BACK TOWARD OLD POLISH BORDER

GERMANS BLOWING UP TANKS
GUNS AS SOVIET TROOPS
ADVANCE

MOSCOW, Nov. 11.—(UP)—Red armies, fanning out from an offensive area beyond Kiev, hammered the Germans back to within 10 miles of the old Polish frontier today and the enemy was reported blowing up tanks and guns in hasty retreat.

Soviet armored spearheads were only 30 miles from the Korosten-Zhmerinka railway, last German-held longitudinal line in the Ukraine.

Sweeping up more than 60 towns and villages in 24 hours, the Soviet command sent columns racing due west from Kiev on the highway to Zhitomir, southwest along the railway to Zhmerinka and northwest along another railway to Korosten.

Rich booty was gathered by the advancing forces, but the Germans blew up 19 of their tanks and eight big self-propelled guns in one sector. Some 70 guns, 37 tanks and 50 armored cars were captured.

Nothwest of Kiev, the Russians forced the Teteriv river and captured Ivanov, 44 miles from the Ukrainian capital and 25 miles west of the Dnieper river. Fifteen hundred Germans were routed.

The Soviet column driving southward killed 2,000 Germans in capturing Grebenki, 45 miles below Kiev and 12 miles northeast of the strategic railway junction of Belaya Tserkov.

The Russians also overran Komarovka, 43 miles west of Kiev, in pushing to within 30 miles of the Korosten-Zhmerinka railway.

Front reports from the Crimea indicated the Soviets were clamping a pincers around Kerch, key to the eastern tip of the Black Sea peninsula. A strongly-fortified German defense base was captured northwest of Kerch after a battle in which hundreds of Germans were killed.

The Germans attempted to hamper the movement of Soviet troops into the beachhead south of Kerch, but Russian artillery sank two torpedo boats and fleet air arm planes sent a coastal patrol boat and a self-propelled landing barge to the bottom.

(Radio Algiers quoted the Stockholm newspaper Svenska Dagbladet as saying that most of the German troops in the Crimea were being evacuated by sea.)

On the central front, the Russians overcame minefield and barbed wire entanglements and captured a number of strongly-fortified villages west and northwest of Nevel on the approaches to the Baltic states. Nearly 1,000 Germans were killed in the repulse of five counter attacks.

Another 600 Germans were killed and six enemy tanks wrecked in futile counter attacks in a neighboring sector.

CAPITAL GIVES CORDELL HULL WARM WELCOME

RETURNS FROM HISTORIC MOSCOW CONFERENCE AMID CHEERS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(UP)—Secretary of state Cordell Hull may have had a hunch as he flew homeward from Moscow that he would be well-received here. For days the press had been praising him as Chief Architect of the Moscow declaration.

But the "gallant old eagle," as Prime Minister Winston Churchill called him, obviously was not prepared for the honors awaiting him.

Before he had been home a couple of hours, Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D., Va., had proposed him for the congressional medal of honor in grateful recognition for "a diplomatic success nearly beyond measure."

But the gray-haired secretary knew the moment he stepped from the big Douglas Skymaster which carried him to the National Airport that, whatever he thought about it, he was cast in the role of returning hero. From scores of high government, congressional, and diplomatic leaders rolled a wave of applause that brought a startled but pleased smile to his face.

A short distance away he spotted President Roosevelt in a White House limousine. Striding to the car with a briskness which belied his 72 years, Hull grasped the President's hand. It was an historic moment. But all Hull could say at first was:

"Well, well, well."

Mr. Roosevelt, not above making an occasional play on words, assured the secretary that he was "looking extremely well."

"This is an unexpected honor, Mr. President," Hull said, still a trifle overwhelmed.

The President leavened the moment, however, by joshing Hull for being "an hour ahead of time," a fact which had forced the Chief Executive to make a hurried trip from the White House.

Mrs. Hull was on hand, but insistent newspaper cameramen and reporters monopolized her husband.

Hull couldn't get over the fact that the President had met him.

"You don't know how much I appreciate this," he said.

"We'll give you the keys to the city," Mr. Roosevelt replied.

By the time Senate Democratic leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky had walked up to say, "I want to congratulate you, sir," Hull was his old self.

"Hello, pardner," he shot back, grinning.

The President was concerned lest Hull, who never had traveled by air before, might be weary.

Hull, however, didn't see it that way. He returned to the car and asked the president, "why can't Frances and I ride back to the White House with you and have a little chat there?"

"Fine, fine," the President said. "Come on."

YANKS TAKING HEAVY TOLL IN ISLAND BATTLE

U. S. SOLDIERS JOIN MARINES
BOUGAINVILLE; JAP LOSSES
MOUNTING.

A L L I E D HEADQUARTERS, SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Nov. 11.—(UP)—American soldiers have landed on Bougainville Island to fight beside U. S. Marines who killed half of a Japanese landing force that tried vainly to flank their beachhead on the last great enemy Solomon stronghold, it was revealed today.

Admiral William F. Halsey's advanced South Pacific Headquarters reported the large-scale army reinforcements were unloaded Monday at Empress Augusta Bay on the island's west coast in the face of an enemy air attack that cost the Japanese 26 planes.

The next day, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique said, 150 Japanese fell before Marine guns and tanks along the Laruma river five miles above Torokina Cape on the north end of the bay. The Marines had killed 125 Japanese Sunday.

MacArthur's spokesman described the Japanese losses in the small but vital struggle as half a force of 300 which sneaked off barges Saturday night trying to loosen the Marine grip on the beachhead. American losses were light.

A dispatch from United Press correspondent George Jones at Halsey's headquarters said the estimate of the Japanese landing party had been scaled down from a regiment to a battalion or less.

The dispatches did not clarify the discrepancy. A regiment in most armies would be 3,000 men and a battalion 1,000.

(NBC correspondent George T. Foster, in a broadcast from Guadalcanal, said the Bougainville invasion was "successful beyond our fondest hopes and expectations" but added here was a "real job ahead" to clear the enemy from the island's swamps and jungles.

(Tokyo broadcasts said Emperor Hirohito had congratulated the Japanese Navy for allegedly damaging 32 Allied warships recently but added the Solomon fighting was growing fiercer. OWI saw in the extravagant enemy claims a parallel with those preceding the retreat from Guadalcanal.)

The 26 enemy planes—bombers and 13 fighters—brought down in protecting the transports off Bougainville were part of at least 67 and probably 76 Japanese aircraft destroyed in actions reported by MacArthur's communique.

Jones reported that the Allied forces were set for additional Japanese landings on Bougainville, possibly in a pincers similar to those attempted at Guadalcanal. Heavy enemy barge traffic was noted around the island, or near which the Japanese have bases, Jones said a Japanese thrust to the south of the beachhead might be possible, indicating none had occurred yet.

The army transports reached Bougainville, 250 miles southeast of the big Japanese base at Rabaul, New Britain, early Monday and unloaded through the morning. Warned of the approach of enemy planes they stood off shore to evade bombs.

Twenty-eight enemy dive-bombers and 40 fighters attacked. Only 20 got through the American fighter screen and ship's defense fire, which pilot Lieut. Franklin Crain of Burlington, N. J., said was so thick "I could have have set my plane on it." Two ships were damaged, with some casualties. Eight Allied planes were lost but two pilots were saved.

During that same morning, Mitchell medium bombers, aided by fighters, raked Japanese positions around the Laruma river to soften them for the impending Marine operations. Other planes bombed en-

DECATUR SUGAR PLANT HAS A VERY SMALL RUN

DECATUR, Ind., Nov. 11.—(UP)—Indiana's only beet sugar processing plant has suspended operations because of the shortest run in its history this season and poor prospects for 1944, company officials announced today.

H. W. McMillen, president of the Central Sugar Company, said 1943 operations which ended Tuesday had netted only 6,272,000 pounds of beet sugar, compared with previous outputs of 40,000,000 pounds.

He said that part of the sugar warehouse had been leased to the Central Soya Company, also a McMillen industry, and other plant facilities probably would be converted. The sugar firm, however, will continue to operate its 34 farms of some 6,000 acres.

The sugar plant was built in 1912 and was purchased by the McMillen interests in 1933. The Soya company and McMillen feed mills began operations in 1934.

All evidence of sale for the month of October must be presented by November 30th.

ZINK SPEAKS

Against Japan after Germany had been eliminated.

Dr. Zink discussed the other parts of the pact relating to the declaration of the establishment of a free Austria, the elimination of fascism in Italy and that part dealing with the punishment for atrocities committed by the Axis. With regard to the punishment for atrocities, Dr. Zink brought out the point that if asylum was sought by Axis criminals that it might be difficult to bring them to a court of justice from the protection of a neutral country.

It was brought out by Dr. Zink that there may have been agreements that could not be divulged at his time due to their strategic importance, and which may, in time, make the Moscow pact one of even more importance than is generally recognized today.

Dear Dad:

Just a few lines to let you know I'm O. K. and feeling fine. I just received your letter of September twenty-eighth, so you can see how long it took for it to catch up with me. You were asking what I needed or wanted for Xmas. Well actually I don't need a thing, cigarettes are plentiful and they cost less than five cents a pack. The only thing that is hard to get is candy, so if it's not too hard to get there, you can send some kind, I'm not particular what brand and it makes no difference whether I get it by Xmas day, candy will taste good at any time. Say Dad guess who I ran into the other day. It was Frankie Canella. He had just gotten back from the States, was wounded over here as you remember and was in the States for treatment. He was looking good although he's aged a lot since I'd last seen him. He's been over here for twenty-two months or at least he hasn't been home on furlough in that time. He told me he hopes to get home some time after the first of the year. He received the Purple Heart for wounds he received and is now on limited service, so I'm hoping he gets home for a rest. Say you're still old fashioned. We get our eggs in powder form and you're still eating them from a shell. By now I've forgotten how those kind taste, but imagine they're very good.

Am glad your hens are doing so good. Hope they keep it up, but suppose the cold weather will slow them up. Well Dad tell all I said hello.

As ever,
George

HULL WELCOMED

For the record, Hull issued this statement:

"On our mission abroad we received every courtesy, every hospitality and every consideration. For two weeks the conference in Moscow worked together as a single unit in an atmosphere of understanding and trust and friendliness and cooperation. We agreed upon a broad basic program of international cooperation. The program contemplates the hastening of victory over the Axis powers, the preservation of peace and the promotion of human welfare in the post-war world.

"I believe that our country and other peace-loving countries have a vast opportunity to profit by the program of policies outlined by the Moscow conference. I have supreme faith they will avail themselves of that opportunity."

ARMISTICE DAY 1943

A quarter of a century has elapsed since November 11th, 1918 when the clouds of war faded, the Armistice was signed and the whole world bowed its head in humble Thanksgiving, for a World Tragedy had ended, a new world peace was born on that day.

Almost to the day, twenty-five years later, American soldiers, on land, on sea, and in the air, a new battlefield where man has never fought before, are again on foreign soil, defending once more the freedom of the world against the war lords of Europe.

The hopes of Armistice Day 1918 have been torn and shattered; again the memories of those who gave their lives in 1917-18 are before us -- and with them comes the realization of the sacrifices yet to be made, spurring us on to greater war efforts than ever before----

Year after year, November 11th, Armistice Day, brought back memories of 1817-18 -- memories of loved ones who honored Flanders Field, of the hopes of those who fought and gave that war would be no more -- yet Armistice Day 1943 is not what its founders hoped for.

Roachdale Raps Old County Foe

Roachdale's Hawks trounced the Cloverdale high school basketball team, 45 to 20, in a game played at Cloverdale Wednesday night.

The winners held only a 7-point margin at the half, being out in front, 20-13. In the last half, the Hawks chalked up 25 more points while holding the Clovers, an old Putnam county rival, to 7 additional points.

Navy Wins, 54-40

Last night at the High School gym the Naval Flight Preparatory School won its opening game of the basketball season by defeating P. R. Mallory, 54-40. The Mallory team swept into an early lead but were soon headed by the Navy cagers. At half time the score stood Navy 23-Mallory 17. In the second half the Flight School retained its lead and had widened it to win by a 14 point margin at the end of the game.

Warren Cartier, 6'3" forward, was high point man for the Navy, scoring 17 of the 54 points. Other sterling performances were turned in by Aviation Cadets Russ Wendland, Charles Tourek and Ed Sadowski.

In its next contest, Wednesday, November 17, the Naval Flight School will meet the strong Pure Oil aggregation from Indianapolis. The game will start at 8:00 p. m. in the Greencastle High School gym.

enemy centers on the north, east and south Bougainville coasts.

Jones said that Maj. Gen. Roy S. Gieger, Marine officer from Pensacola, Fla., had succeeded Lieut. Gen. A. A. Vandegrift in command of field operations on Bougainville. Rear Adm. Robert B. Carney of Colorado, Cal., South Pacific Chief of Staff, returned to Admiral William F. Halsey's advanced headquarters to report land operations were "proceeding satisfactorily."

Allied planes won a second victory, destroying at least 35 Japanese planes and probably two more at Alexishafen, New Guinea, where they caught enemy reinforcements being moved into bases on the northeast coast.

ON THE FARM

Lucille Smith

With this year's national crop of Irish potatoes at an all time high, they have been appropriately designated as a "Nationwide Victory Food Selection" from Oct. 21 to Nov. 6, says Miss Smith, Putnam County home demonstration agent.

The major problem in handling this year's crop is storage. Because commercial storage is not sufficient to handle the huge supply, homemakers can help the situation by buying this easily stored food in extra large quantities—a bushel or more—and storing them at home. A cellar, closet, back porch, or garage will do—just so the location is dark and stays between 40 and 60 degrees. If the storage place is light, a covering of cloth or paper over the potatoes will keep them from turning greenish and developing a bitter taste. Potatoes purchased for storage should be inspected carefully. Any which are decayed, badly bruised, or cracked will not keep well.

Within its brown jacket the Irish potato stores important food values. When potatoes take a prominent part in the diet, they may supply a good part of the day's need for vitamin C. They also provide some thiamine, iron, and other minerals as well as some vegetable protein and plenty of starch for energy.

Because potatoes are eaten so often, variety in preparation adds "spice". Yet simplicity of preparation is the goal of all war-time cooking. Simplest of all cooking methods—and those which save the most food value—are baking or steaming the potatoes in their brown jackets, then eating the jackets along with the potato. Extra potatoes steamed in their jackets, may be peeled and used in additional ways at later meals.

When potatoes are pared before cooking, peelings should be thin and removed just before cooking. Peeling potatoes early and soaking them takes away vitamins and minerals. In cooking, using only a small amount of liquid is best.

ADDED 20 PER CENT MILK PRODUCTION IS POSSIBLE

"Here's how!" says G. A. Williams, Purdue University extension dairyman, in explaining that Indiana dairymen may increase the daily milk production of their herd about 20 per cent, without additional cash outlay or extra labor, by following approved dairy herd management practices.

"First," says Williams, "allow every cow a dry period of six to eight weeks in length; second, feed every cow some grain during the dry period, the amount depending on the condition of the cow and the kind and amounts of roughage on hand; third, feed the best quality roughage available during the dry period and for a short time after freshening; fourth, do not allow the calf to nurse its dam for more than two or three days, since high producing cows frequently do not reach their maximum production if the calf is allowed to nurse for several weeks; and fifth, milk heavy producers, especially heifers, three times a day for 60 to 90 days after calving."

imum production if the calf is allowed to nurse for several weeks; and fifth, milk heavy producers, especially heifers, three times a day for 60 to 90 days after calving."

Williams says that on the basis of Dairy Herd Improvement Association records, many dairymen may add the equivalent of one cow to every five in the milking herd if correct care is given each cow during the dry period and for a short time following. An added production of at least 250,000,000 pounds of milk next year would thus be possible, if half the dairymen in the state followed this practice.

"At a time when larger supplies of milk are needed urgently for our armed forces as well as for the civilian population, the essentials of successful herd management as a means of increasing production cannot be over-emphasized," Williams concludes.

FUNGI AND BACTERIA ROT VEGETABLES IN STORAGE

Fungi and bacteria capable of rotting stored vegetables pounce upon every wound or cut in the skins of potatoes, sweet potatoes, carrots, onions, and such vegetables to do their work of destruction, says C. T. Gregory, extension plant disease specialist at Purdue University. Wounds carelessly made in harvesting the crop open the way for these pests, otherwise harmless since they cannot penetrate the unbroken skins of vegetables, to get in their deadly work.

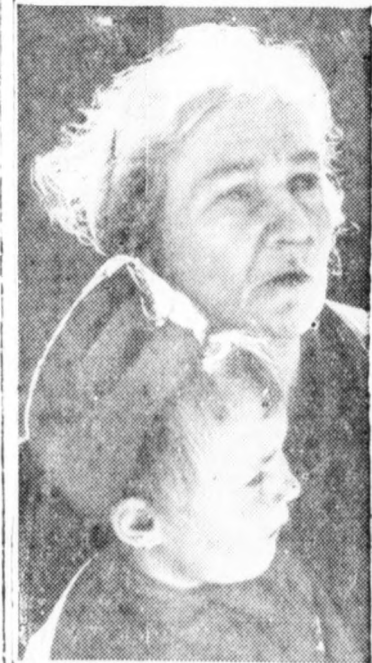

The first step in preventing rotting of vegetables in storage is careful handling and the use of only sound, well matured vegetables. Neither low temperatures nor the most carefully built storage houses will stop these rots once they gain entrance into the vegetable.

It is recommended that gardeners wait until the vines are dead before digging potatoes, since late blight is prevalent, but after the vines are killed, these spores die. If potatoes are dug while the vines are green, particularly when wet with rain or dew, the blight may spread to the potatoes and start a rot that will continue to develop in storage.

Sweet potatoes that are affected with black rot disease should not be stored. This disease shows as shallow black cankers on the surface, and in storage not only rots the potato but spreads to other potatoes. After being dug, sweet potatoes should be kept in a well ventilated place at a temperature of 85 to 90 degrees F. for at least 10 days. Following this preliminary drying, they may be kept at a temperature of about 55 degrees F.

In storing onions, it is recommended that they first be thoroughly dried in a well ventilated place and then stored in a cool place.
